By now, the success of Gints Zilbalodis and his film Away has spread around the world, ensuring Latvia's reputation as an animation-producing country. Meanwhile, Jacob, Mimmi and the Talking Dogs producer Sabīne Andersone was nominated for the Cartoon Movie award for best European producer of the year, and her Kafka in Love project with director Zane Oborenko won the main CEE Forum 2019 award. Continuing the momentum from Latvia's centenary celebrations, Latvia currently has 16 animated film projects in the works, almost half of which are feature-length films. Audiences will soon see Ilze Burkovska-Jacobsen's documentary animated film My Favorite War, Signe Baumane's musical My Love Affair With Marriage, the Apple Pie Lullaby project by Rija Films, three new instalments of the Shammies series and also the premieres of short films by artists Edmunds Jansons, Kārlis Vītols and Jurģis Krāsons. We can surely declare that, before long, festivals around the world will become acquainted with new stories by known filmmakers and exciting debuts full of the wild and untiring spirit of Latvian animation.
Gints Zilbalodis

Gints Zilbalodis is a young animator and director who already has considerable experience in the field. After several shorts that gained recognition at film festivals and on the internet, he began an independent, feature-length project of his own, the animated film Projām / Away. The first part of the project, titled Oāze / Oasis, premiered in 2017 and introduced audiences to the hero of the story, whose adventures now continue in the full-length version. However, Zilbalodis emphasises that Oasis was only an excerpt of the whole story; it has now been completely reworked and no longer exists as a stand-alone entity.

Zilbalodis has chosen to work alone because he wishes to learn all of the aspects of film production; besides, working alone simply seemed easier and cheaper at the time. When asked, after three and a half years of work, whether he still believes this to be the case, he says yes. The lack of a team also allowed him to get by without a storyboard, meetings, obstacles and instructions from others, thus saving time and giving him more creative freedom. This is one of the reasons why Zilbalodis has focused on animation – it is a technique that can be learned independently (as he has done himself) and lends itself well to working with a small team where he does not need to fear losing his original creative ideas. However, now that he has accumulated some experience and established various contacts, Zilbalodis is considering doing his next project together with a small team in Latvia or abroad.

Having tried his hand at classic animation, Zilbalodis has now turned to 3D computer animation, because it lets him use the camera as if in a feature film yet still retain the endless possibilities provided by animation. Thus he can create a setting that exists somewhere between a real and stylised environment. In Away, there is an emphasis on camera movement, creating the impression that the action has been filmed by a camera operator even though the animated characters do not lay any claim to being realistic – the shadowless, featureless figures perform against a realistic background of, for example, clouds or other natural landscapes.

Zilbalodis does not wish to say much about his future plans; he prefers to immerse himself in a single project and wait for the next project to appear on its own. Seeing how his style has developed, one can expect that Zilbalodis’ future work will likely gravitate towards magical realism and the abstract rather than the depiction of reality.

Most-significant films:

- Projām / Away
  - 3D computer animation, 75 min, 2019, young adults, no dialogue
  - A boy wakes up in the desert next to a downed airplane. A mysterious monster emerges from the wreck and starts pursuing the boy. His only salvation is an oasis, but it’s too lonely to live there for very long. One day the boy finds an orphaned bird, teaches it to fly, and soon both of them are ready to head out into the world to look for others like them.
  - Contrechamp Award at the Annecy Festival / Total of 11 awards
  - Screened at 60+ festivals / Annie Award nomination for best music

- Prioritātes / Priorities
  - 3D animation, 9 min, 2014, young adults, no dialogue
  - A story about a young man, who is fighting for survival, and his dog, who is only fighting for his master’s attention.

- Aqua
  - Classic animation, 7 min, 2012, young adults, no dialogue
  - A cat wakes up in the middle of the ocean and must extricate itself from this complicated, scary situation.
After winning the Contrechamp Award at the Annecy Festival, Away has been screened at more than 60 film festivals and won 11 more awards. The film will be seen at theatres in France and will soon also appear in Poland, Portugal, Italy, Japan and several other countries, including on Amazon Prime and other VOD platforms in the United States. In the meantime, Zilbalodis is already working on his next film, Straume / Flow, which he plans to finish in 2023. The main protagonist of the film is a cat who is afraid of water but is forced to live in a world that is rapidly succumbing to floods. Zilbalodis emphasises that this will not be a continuation of Away, despite addressing similar themes, such as the loneliness of living in modern society.

In a way, however, the protagonist in Flow again resembles its author – as already known, Zilbalodis created Away at a leisurely tempo and mostly by himself, but, once the film was finished and began showing at festivals, he very soon ended up travelling around most of the world and meeting countless people. Needless to say, it was a radical change of pace for the filmmaker, who quickly had to become accustomed to new experiences, and he wished to document and analyse these feelings in a new film. When asked whether he plans to work with a larger team this time around, Zilbalodis answers affirmatively, adding that it will nevertheless be a relatively small team and he will do most of the creative work himself. One of the reasons he mentions for this is that the technique he uses is unusual and not many people are acquainted with it. Right now, director and producer Mattis Kaža has joined him and is helping to write the scenario and produce the film.

Flow will be made in a graphically stylised 3D animation technique, similarly to Away, during the creation of which Zilbalodis learned many new strategies for making an even more detailed and lifelike animated environment. Music will also play a large role in this film and is being written alongside the creation of the film itself. Flow has been supported by the Culture Capital Foundation of Latvia, and the team is interested in collaborating with international partners.

Work in progress:

Straume / Flow
3D animation, feature, young adults, no dialogue

- At a time when the world is rapidly succumbing to floods, a cat must learn to survive even though he is very afraid of water.
Signe Baumane

Baumane started as an animation director in Latvia, but she gained international recognition in the world of animation with her series of short films titled Trash Beat of Sex (2008). In addition to several other short-format projects, this popular series was followed by her first feature-length animated film, Rocks In My Pockets / Mans laulību projekts, Baumane is using the same animation technique but has expanded it. The voices of the film’s thirty characters have been recorded by actors from New York, including Matthew Modine, who has worked with Hollywood heavyweights such as Stanley Kubrick and Christopher Nolan. My Love Affair... is a coming-of-age story about a woman and her search for romantic fulfilment. It is based on Baumane’s own personal experience – openness has always been a hallmark of her work. In addition to following the course of several love affairs, the film also touches upon the biological processes at work when we fall in love with someone and society’s glorification of romantic fulfilment. The main hero, Zelma, sincerely believes that the meaning of life lies in love and that there’s an “other half”, or soul mate, for everyone. But she always ends up in a dead end. My Love Affair... is a study about myths, reality and femininity. Baumane began work on My Love Affair... already in September 2015 and plans to finish the film in early 2021. She remembers that just writing the scenario took a whole year, because it began with an in-depth study of the film’s theme. She wanted to learn not only why people get married but also how the biology works; that is, what happens in us when we fall in love, what biological processes determine our gender, what lies at the foundation of gender-related behaviour? “It’s not just biological determinism,” says Baumane. “It’s also social circumstances, how we play gender roles, and how society forces these roles on us.” It is precisely this aspect of research, as well as her own personal experience, that will set the film apart from others about similar themes. Baumane has been married twice but is currently unmarried, despite being in a relationship since 2000. She has always wanted to tell this story about love and marriage, about how two people come together and how their previous experiences influence each subsequent relationship.

Music will play a major role in My Love Affair.... Three mythological figures (sirens, to be exact) will sing about love, because, “How else do we learn what love is? Obviously, we hear about it in songs – we grow up with songs like this, and people want the kind of love that is worthy of being sung about in song,” says Baumane.

The project is quite extensive and involved. According to the film’s website, it will be 95 minutes long, feature 29 speaking roles and 200–300 non-speaking roles, and involve the work of 43 actors from the United States and Latvia. In order to prepare, Baumane spent three weeks working with the actors. She is very pleased with the result and says that the actors were great. The project has also involved 50 animation artists, students and interns from the United States as well as Latvia. Baumane comments that at first it was difficult to understand how to go about working with people on the other side of the world. Although the technique used in this film is similar to that in Rocks In My Pockets, Baumane believes that artists must nevertheless continue to develop their style and challenge themselves, which made it even more difficult for her to teach her style to others.

The biggest challenge, however, has been attracting financing for the project. My Love Affair... received support from 1562 people through a Kickstarter campaign and has also received support from national grants, but Baumane is still seeking private sponsors in order to finish the film. She would like to involve a million people in this conversation about love, relationships and social stereotypes. She wishes to entertain, provoke and shed light on the film’s viewers so that, as they leave the theatre, they might take a fresh look at their relationships, and reflect on the influence of oxytocin and dopamine in their bodies.

Signe Baumane is a Latvian living in the United States. Although she has not studied animation, she is nevertheless one of the best-known Latvian animators in the world thanks to her distinct personal style and courageous themes. Her films are diverse in terms of colour and technique as well as narrative, expressive and clever visual metaphors have become an integral feature of her style. Baumane gives an exterior language to the various internal, yet hidden, psychological processes that influence our world around us. For her upcoming project, My Love Affair with Marriage / Mans laulību projekts, Baumane is using the same animation technique but has expanded it. The voices of the film’s thirty characters have been recorded by actors from New York, including Matthew Modine, who has worked with Hollywood heavyweights such as Stanley Kubrick and Christopher Nolan. My Love Affair... is a coming-of-age story about a woman and her search for romantic fulfilment. Recent film:

Akmeni manās kabatās / Rocks in My Pockets
Stop motion, drawn animation, 88 min, 2014, Latvia / United States, adults, dialogues

A story based on real people and events. The director tells about five women in her family, including herself, and their battles with life’s challenges, depression and mental illness. In this bleak yet funny film, the twists and turns of Latvian history are interlaced with personal experiences and stories about family secrets, love and marriage.

Coming soon:

Mans laulību projekts / My Love Affair with Marriage
Stop motion papier mâché, drawn animation, 95 min, 2021, Latvia / United States, adults, dialogues

In her search for true love, a fiery young woman with a wild imagination journeys through several marriages – some real, some imaginary – while confronting pressures from society and her own biology, all of which influence her moods and behaviour.

Ilze Burkovska-Jacobsen

Ilze Burkovska-Jacobsen is a Latvian who has lived in Norway since the early 1990s. She has created several personal documentary films, the most recent of which is My Favorite War / Mans mīļākais karš, which tells about her childhood and youth in the Soviet Union during the Cold War. This newest film by Burkovska-Jacobsen makes use of both animated and documentary materials. It continues the collaboration between the Bivrost Film&TV studio in Norway and the Ego Media studio in Latvia, also engaging Latvian animation specialists from Tritone Studio. Approximately 80% of the film is animated, with the rest consisting of archival materials or contemporary documentary footage. Burkovska-Jacobsen has chosen to rely on the language of animation, because it most precisely portrays people, events or environments that remain only in the memory. Most of the film is created in a digital-application style, but episodes and scenes depicting different eras, other people's stories or the protagonist's own imagination are created using 3D animation. The task of the documentary materials also depends on the content of each specific episode. The contemporary footage provides a summary of preceding scenes, and the archival materials illustrate features of the era that the director wishes to emphasise in each particular setting. In several instances, archival footage is combined with animation in a single frame, as if the protagonist were watching a television programme or sitting in a movie theatre. Svein Nyhus (Norway) is the main artist for My Favorite War; the animation is created by animators from Latvia.

Coming soon:
Mans mīļākais karš / My Favorite War
Classic animation with documentary footage, 80 min, 2020, Latvia/Norway, adults, dialogues
An animated documentary film with an anti-war message for a global audience. The plot line follows the director’s own development as a person, from a playful childhood fascination to an independent and critical attitude towards the destructive evil of war and armed conflict. The action takes place during the director’s childhood and youth in Kurzeme, on the far western edge of the Soviet Union. The film makes use of a wide range of stories, memories and facts about the Second World War in Kurzeme, with a main focus on the experiences of the civilian population. The film thus reflects two periods in Latvian history: 1944–1945 in Kurzeme and the 1970s–1980s during the Soviet era. The film’s premiere is planned for autumn 2019.

Atom Art is an award-winning 2D animation studio established in 2001 and based in Riga, Latvia. Over the years, it has grown from a four-person animation studio to a company with more than 30 people on its staff. However, the main team has stayed the same. Atom Art is known for its auteur short films and animated films for children. The studio works in a variety of animation genres: magical realism, animated documentary, musical, puppet animation and even puppet animation.

Atom Art is currently producing three new films from the Shammies mini-series, Edmunds Jansons’ new auteur film Guard of Honor and also Kafka in Love, a short film made with the sand animation technique by Zane Oborenko. A new feature film, Born in the Jungle, is in development.

Atom Art is currently producing three new films from the Shammies mini-series, Edmunds Jansons’ new auteur film Guard of Honor and also Kafka in Love, a short film made with the sand animation technique by Zane Oborenko. A new feature film, Born in the Jungle, is in development.

Edmunds Jansons is the founder of the Atom Art studio and an award-winning director. He also works as an animator, graphic artist, editor and creative producer, and in his free time he enjoys illustrating children’s books.

Sābīne Andersone is the CEO of the company and the main producer for all the important projects at Atom Art. Although she is the main financial manager, she is one of the most creative people at Atom Art.

Mārtiņš Dūmiņš is the lead animator and animation supervisor at Atom Art. Over the years, he and Edmunds Jansons have developed a unique cut-out animation style that serves as the brand of Atom Art in Latvia and abroad.

Ieva Vaicikovska is the production manager of film projects at Atom Art and also the manager of all kinds of other projects at the studio. She is the right hand of the producers and directors.

Girts Biļķis is the sound director for most of Atom Art’s films. For some films he has also composed music and has been quite successful at that, having received many national and international awards for his work.

Reins Pētersens is an illustrator and artist who works in various diverse styles. He has created the design for the studio’s children’s films as well as his own short animation film, Uzsis, made in a delicate charcoal-drawing technique.

Ieva Vaicikovska is an artist and book illustrator who has collaborated with Atom Art on a feature film. This collaboration continues with the development of their next feature film together.

Zane Oborenko is an artist and animator who creates short films, the challenges of animation technique, mastering it beautifully. No story is too difficult for her, not even one inspired by the seemingly dull existentialist Franz Kafka.

The Atom Art studio is led by producer Sābīne Andersone and director Edmunds Jansons. The studio’s third core member is the lead animator Mārtiņš Dūmiņš. Creative decisions are made as a team. Although the presence of the producer and creative director is a ubiquitous part of any film made at Atom Art, invited directors are nevertheless given much creative freedom.

The studio began working with auteur animated short films, first of all Jansons’ own films but later also involving artist Reins Pētersens, Ieva Biķķe and Zane Oborenko. Atom Art is now able to support itself by fully devoting itself to auteur animated films, a point it has reached after many years of trying to balance between short films and various commercial projects. Edmunds Jansons: “I sometimes compare our studio to the situation with Icelandic music. There was a distinct ‘boom’ about ten years ago or so when Icelandic groups became super popular, and people asked them how they did it. So art-housey, doing such totally crazy, nutty things… And they replied: we just came to the realisation that there was absolutely no point in being commercial, because we simply aren’t capable of doing commerce! I don’t think any attempts by Atom Art to become commercial would work either, because we don’t have that kind of taste here at the studio. But, by doing what you know best, you eventually realise that that’s even more profitable than trying to be commercial. Over time, the small auteurs that put out by our studio bring in a lot more, in terms of satisfaction and sometimes even financially, because they continue to be shown.”

The studio’s second direction of activity revolves around producing children’s animated films. Atom Art has developed children’s projects in a variety of formats, from the Shammies preschool mini-series and the Pigtail and Mr. Sleeplessness television special to the feature-length film Jacob, Mimmi and the Talking Dogs. Born in the Jungle, the new feature film currently in development, is a story about a Latvian adventurer’s family living in the Venezuelan jungle in the mid-20th century.

“We see children’s cinema as a dialogue that you have to form with a great sense of responsibility and truly believing in what you do, because it influences the taste of the young generation. As we work, we keep in mind that we are parents ourselves and want to create something our children will enjoy. At the present moment, we’re seeing that there’s no limit for films made with such an approach; they’re appreciated all over the world.” (Sābīne Andersone and Edmunds Jansons)
Most-significant films:

Jacob, Mimmi and the Talking Dogs / Jēkabs, Mimmi un runājošie suņi
Edmunds Jansons, digital cut-outs, Latvia / Poland, 70 min, 2019, universal, dialogues

- An adventure story about two children spending summer in an old suburb, where, together with a bunch of talking dogs, they rescue the romantic neighbourhood of wooden houses from destruction.

The Shammies / Lupatiņi
Edmunds Jansons, digital cut-outs, Latvia, preschool-aged children, dialogue in English / Latvian

- The Shammies are an animated cross-media project for preschool-aged children about discovering the world through children’s games, fantasy and wordplay. In the upcoming instalments “How The Shammies Travelled”, “How The Shammies Had Breakfast” and “How The Shammies Counted Time”, the little Shammies travel without leaving the house and learn how to count chairs and time.

Pigtail and Mr. Sleeplessness / Bize un Neguļa

- To win back her parents’ attention, a six-year-old girl nicknamed Pigtail and her imaginary friend, Mr. Sleeplessness, come up with a clever plan to send her Baby Brother and Grandma to the moon.

Choir Tour / Kora turneja
Edmunds Jansons, 2D computer animation, 5 min, 2012, Latvia, universal, no dialogue

- It’s a wild free-for-all when a famous boys’ choir breaks away from their conductor while on tour in Seoul and causes mayhem in the hotel.

Ursus
Reins Pētersons, charcoal drawing, 10 min, 2011, Latvia, universal, no dialogue

- A charcoal-on-paper animation about a circus bear on a motorcycle who decides to leave the daily routine and takes off into the forest, where his true happiness seems to dwell.

Riga Lilac / Rīgas ceriņi
Lizete Upīte, 2D computer animation, 14 min, 2019, France / Latvia, adults, no dialogue

- On Riga’s public transport system, you can call the police if someone smells bad and disturbs your ride. But would you call? Lizete, an amateur interviewer, tries to figure out whether we have the right to stink.

Guard of Honor / Goda sardze
Edmunds Jansons, 2D computer animation, 5 min, 2020, Latvia, universal, no dialogue

- The guards stand in front of the historical symbol of the state. No matter the season or weather, they fulfil their duty, the obligation of honour. Is there a boundary beyond which this honourable credibility begins to look exaggerated?

Kafka in Love / Iemīlējies Kafka
Zane Oborenko, sand animation, 10 min, 2022, Latvia, adults, dialogue in Latvian / English

- Franz and Milena – between them a distance, her husband and loads of letters. It’s a love that fills Kafka’s life with light and hope and at the same time illuminates the fears and darkness in him. This animated short is based on Kafka’s letters to Milena and explores less known but nonetheless extraordinary and puzzling aspects of Kafka’s personality.

Work in progress:

Born in the Jungle / Laimes bērni
Edmunds Jansons, cut-outs, 2D computer animation, 70 min, 2023, universal, dialogues

- Chalky is a fragile-looking Latvian girl who lives at the foot of Devil’s Mountain in the Venezuelan jungle. One day her stepfather disappears, and Chalky, overcoming her fear, embarks on a rescue mission, getting involved in unimaginable adventures that force her to grow up quickly.

Guard of Honor / Goda sardze
Edmunds Jansons, 2D computer animation, 5 min, 2020, Latvia, universal, no dialogue

- The guards stand in front of the historical symbol of the state. No matter the season or weather, they fulfil their duty, the obligation of honour. Is there a boundary beyond which this honourable credibility begins to look exaggerated?

We think and work internationally

Atom Art produces films not only on a local level but also on a European and global level. Participation in international industry forums plays a very important role in the studio’s development. Atom Art tries to appear at Cartoon Forum, Cartoon Movie and CEE Forum every year – such activities influence and cultivate the studio’s competitiveness on the national as well as international stage. The studio directors, for their part, keep current by actively watching the newest animated films at film festivals around the world. “We follow current events and trends in film because it’s inspiring – if you see that you don’t need to pander to anything, then you become more courageous in your creative expression,” says Sabīne Andersone.

Jacob, Mimmi and the Talking Dogs is a film for the whole family based on the book by award-winning author Luīze Pastore. It’s a summer adventure story that takes place in the Riga suburb of Maskačka. Jacob, a boy from central Riga, arrives to spend the summer with his relatives on the outskirts of the city.

Edmunds Jansons about working on the film:

This is my first feature-length film, but the team consists of almost the same people I’ve been working with for years on short films. I think the main difference with feature-length films is related to distribution – the formats and requirements are completely different. The way in which a film reaches the viewer through a movie theatre’s repertoire is much simpler than it is for short films. Jacob and Mimmi... is a family film, a children’s film, and that means it’s not really auteuristic experimentation in which I wander off on my own artistic endeavours and do only things I’m interested in myself. For example, short films, on the other hand, are interesting for viewers precisely because the best of them are complete auteur cinema, even exotic in a way – another person is expressing him- or herself, and I’m able to observe what that looks like. Whereas the full-length format demands that I know how it works, how viewers will respond to it. My goal is not to entertain, or only to entertain; it’s important for me to understand my audience. If this type of film does not lead to emotional teamwork with the audience – no matter whether it’s a sigh, laughter or tears – then, I believe, it doesn’t work. A film must resonate.
The Rija film studio was established in 1995; its main activities are film production, the dubbing of animated films, and film distribution. To date, its films have been made by 19 different directors, including Inga Riba (Prauliņa), Vladimirs Leščovs, Signe Baumane, Jurģis Krāsons, Reinis Kalnaellis, Aija Ilęy, Askolds Saulitis and Agnese Aizpuriete.

Rija’s first animated film, Little Devils / Velniņi, was released in 1999. Before that, however, the studio had already amassed considerable experience by doing animation for French director Michel Ocelot’s film Kirikou and the Sorceress / Kirikou et la Sorcière, which went on to win ten international prizes. The global attention Rija received also led to a significant role for the studio in a French, Great Britain, Belgium and Canada feature-length co-production, the Oscar-nominated film Belleville Rendez-vous / Les Triplettes de Belleville (2003).

Rija has had many highlights in its 23 years of work: the shorts To Swallow a Toad / Norīt krupi (dir. Jurģis Krāsons, 2010), When Apples Roll / Kad āboli ripo (dir. Reinis Kalnaellis) and Singing Hugo and his Incredible Adventures / Dziedošais Hugo un viņa neticamie piedzīvojumi (dir. Reinis Kalnaellis, 2010) premiered at the prestigious Cannes and Berlin film festivals and also won awards at several other international festivals.

Rija’s short film Funny Alphabet / Joka pēc alfabēts (dir. Reinis Kalnaellis, 2010), script and art by Indra Sproge, music by well-known Latvian musician Renārs Kaupers has become very popular, with almost 13 million views on YouTube.
Most-significant films:

Sieviete / The Woman
Sopie Baumane, classic animation, 10 min, 2002, adults, no dialogue
- A visually poetic story about a woman’s creation, her setting out into the world and her ability to bring man either Love or Death.

Joka pēc alfabēts / Funny Alphabet
Reinis Kalnaellis, classic animation, 3 min, 2015, children, lyrics
- A short and witty story featuring the adventures of various animals in alphabetical order. With a fun song and entertaining characters, it helps children learn the Latvian alphabet.

Les Triplettes de Belleville / Belleville Rendez-vous
Sylvain Chomet, classic animation, 77 min, 2003, France / Belgium / Great Britain / Canada, U, no dialogue
- Nominated for two Academy Awards (Oscars) in 2004, for best animated feature and best original song.

Kirikou et la Sorcière / Kirikou and the Sorceress
Michel Ocelot, classic animation, 71 min, 1998, France / Luxembourg, children, dialogues

Ābolrauša šūpuļdziesma / Apple Pie Lullaby
Reinis Kalnaellis, classic animation, 65 min, 2020, children, dialogues
- A film about the little penguin girl Telma, who worries that her fifth Birthday will not find its way to her house and she will forever remain four years old. For many years now, Rija has been actively participating in co-productions. According to director Vilnis Kalnaelis, the studio first develops a project and then attracts co-producers, selecting them based on their experience and previous work. One significant project was the feature-length film Lotte from Gadgetville (2006), which was made in collaboration with the Estonian company Eesti Joonisfilm. A second feature-length film with the Lotte character was released in 2011, and a third, Lotte and the Lost Dragons, will come out in 2019, premiering in the Generation competition at the Berlinale.

Rija specialises in classic animation technique, in which a team of professionals bring to life the ideas of a director and/or artist. The forthcoming film Apple Pie Lullaby / Ābolrauša šūpuļdziesma is being created using the Maya 3D programme, with a 2D version developed later for the film’s composition and colourisation. Last year, Rija worked on two feature-length animated films, one short and one documentary. The studio has 25 employees working with animated films.

The Studio Locomotive produces fiction, creative documentaries and animation. Founded in 1995, in recent years it has become one of the fastest growing, most creative and most productive film studios in the Baltic countries. Nearly all of the films produced by Studio Locomotive have been premiered at well-known international film festivals.

The director of Studio Locomotive is producer Roberts Vinovskis, who has been active in the film industry since the early 1990s. The studio has mainly worked with live action films, but recently animation has begun playing a larger role as well. “The way that I, as a producer, arrived at animation was actually a matter of chance,” says Vinovskis. “But it didn’t come as a surprise to me, because in cinema, I believe it’s important to make good films and stories; the technique through which one achieves that should be the one that’s most appropriate for each particular story.”

To date, Studio Locomotive has participated in the creation of seven animated films: three feature-length and four short films. The studio’s first animation project was independent director Nils Skapiņš’ plasticine animated short film Cat in the Bag / Kaķis maisā (2013). This was followed by a collaboration with internationally recognised, New York-based director Signe Baumane for her full-length film Rocks in My Pockets / Akmeņi manās kabatās (2014). As the minority partner in the co-production, Studio Locomotive was responsible for the film’s distribution in Latvia, where attracting audiences is a challenge. Vinovskis comments: “The film’s theme is quite specific. It was clear from the outset that this wasn’t going to be a box-office hit. But as a producer, it’s precisely these kinds of projects that interest me; that’s where the adrenaline is. And, considering all of that, the film has done very well in Latvia. In the global context, too, the film has had visibility – more than 200 festivals. The world premiere of this film was the first time in the history of the Karlovy Vary festival that an animated film was included in the official selection.”

As Latvia’s centenary approached, Studio Locomotive has participated in the creation of seven animated films: three feature-length and four short films.
Most-significant films:

Akmeņi manās kabatās / Rocks in My Pockets
Signe Baumane, stopmotion, drawn and papier mâché animation, 88 min, 2014, Latvia / United States, adults, dialogue in English and Latvian

Saule brauca debesīs / Before the Day Breaks
Roze Stiebra, drawn animation, 75 min, 2018, Latvia, universal audiences, dialogue

The Sun and Moon have a baby, and mummers arrive to welcome the Daughter of the Sun. Amid the joyous crowds, no one notices that the Daughter has disappeared, and everyone is suddenly stunned to see an empty cradle. However strong the Sun and Moon are, they cannot find their Daughter nor bring her back home. It turns out they need a human being! And so Nabašnieks, along with a little girl and her young brother who were among the mummers just a short while ago, volunteer to help and go out into the big, wide world to find the Daughter of the Sun and bring her home.

worked on Before the Day Breaks / Saule brauca debesīs, whose director, Roze Stiebra, received the Latvian National Film Award for lifetime achievement while work on the film was still underway. Although it was the 60th film in her career, this was the first film Stiebra had made in almost a decade. It was also the first time the studio had brought together such a large team—thirty people—needed to create a full-length animated film. "I don't know which higher powers stood by us," says Vinovskis, "but we were able to put together a team that was entirely from Latvia, in spite of the fact that there aren't all that many animators in Latvia."

Having successfully finished the animation process for Before the Day Breaks, the studio began working on its next challenge, namely, the first Latvian feature-length animated film for adults. Baumane's newest film, My Love Affair with Marriage / Mans laulību projekts, will premiere in late 2021 and is being created as a majority co-production with the United States. Vinovskis is hopeful about the result: "There's a lot of interest from festivals as well as sales agents. There's no doubt that this film of Signe's will be no less successful with audiences than her previous one. In fact, this film might in a way even be easier for viewers. The manner of narration and the director's style remain very similar, but this one has a lot of music and acting; it's almost something of a musical. And the theme is more universal—it's no longer about depression but instead about marriage and gender stereotypes, about the rules of the man and woman in the family and in society. It's a theme that addresses almost every adult who lives in a community rather than all alone in the forest. And so I believe that the potential audience is very, very broad."

When the studio finishes this current project, Studio Locomotive plans to provide animation services or perhaps take on another large project with the aim of maintaining the professional team it has painstakingly put together. At the moment, Studio Locomotive is working on a new feature by Roze Stiebra, Rule of the Heart. In this project, Stiebra has paired up with Aleksejs Naumovs, one of the most important painters of recent decades in Latvia.

Work in progress:

Rule of the Heart / Sirds likums

Director Jānis Cimmermanis and human orchestra (as well as scriptwriter, producer, artist, even composer) Māris Putniņš have been making puppet films together for more than 30 years. They have become so attuned to each other that they almost have no need for words when working. “Often we’ll begin making a film,” says Putniņš, his elbow resting comfortably on his knee, “and a great solution simply appears. Who thought it up?” He looks over at Cimmermanis, who is resting against the table, his arms crossed. “Who the hell knows,” he replies puckishly and lifts an eyebrow above the frame of his glasses.

Since the mid-1960s, when the Riga Film Studio established a puppet department, the group working there has been very close. Generations have come and gone; the appearance of the puppets and the roles of the filmmakers themselves have changed; political systems, sources of funding and the film industry have also changed. Over the years, hundreds of puppets and decorations have been filmed: rabbits, dogs, big noses from the Rescue Team series, all painstakingly hand-made. At the present moment, the studio employs 16 professionals in the field of puppets on a number of different projects taking place simultaneously.

The Rescue Team films have participated in a variety of international film festivals and have won prestigious prizes, including the Crystal Bear children’s jury award at the Berlin International Film Festival in 1995 for the film Let’s Fly (Lidojam, from the Munk and Lemmy series directed by Nils Skapāns). Another successful animation short is Hedgehogs and the City (Eži un lielpilsēta, 2013) by Ēvalds Lācis, which has received ten awards at international film festivals.

The studio's film scripts are mostly original; some are based on Latvian or foreign literature and comic strips. The studio is mostly recognised for its five- to ten-minute-long children’s shorts without dialogue. “Does the script come first?” I ask Putniņš and Cimmermanis. “First is a crazy idea,” laughs Cimmermanis. Audacious, absurd, a bit wild, crazy – that’s what puppet people are like.
Dace Rīdūze has studied theatre arts, theatre directing and pedagogy. She began working with animation in 1998 when she joined the Animācijas Brigāde film studio, where she learned about puppet cinema from the very foundations up. Her film Up and Down / Kaimiņu būšana (2000) received the “Lielais Kristaps” Latvian national film award for best debut, and the experience inspired her to continue creating films. Rīdūze’s films Firefly / Jāņtārpiņš (2002), Acorn Boy / Zīļuks (2010) and Little Ruddy / Sārtulis (2014) have taken part in the competition at the Berlin Film Festival. Her 13th and most recent film, Dusty / Puteklis, was released in 2019. Rīdūze is already working on her next short, Angry Bag / Dusmu kule.

Much of Rīdūze’s work has been inspired by classic Latvian literature, which has not lost its currency in terms of either content or visual values. The characters created by famous illustrator Margarita Stāraste are particular favourites of hers: “In Stāraste’s work I find my Latvian ‘code’, the one I grew up with. Now my children see it as well, and I hope that, in the film format, it will reach yet another generation.”

After 20 years in puppet animation, Rīdūze still finds ways to develop her technique and experiment. For example, a real boy appears alongside the puppets in her newest film, Dusty. “In puppet animation, I can be the director, scenographer, set decorator, actor and tricks master all at the same time,” says Rīdūze. “I get excited by the feeling you get when crossing the fragile boundary between the real world and the invisible universe of fantasy.”

Most-significant films:

Up and Down / Kaimiņu būšana
Puppet animation, 7 min, 2000, children, no dialogue
- Strange things are happening at the Tiger’s garden. Someone has stolen his carrots and some of the carrots are growing “up and down”

Firefly / Jāņtārpiņš
Puppet animation, 12 min, 2002, children, no dialogue
- Otis the Firefly is trying to find a girlfriend, but due to his inability to glow, he is finding this difficult.

Acorn Boy / Zīļuks
Puppet animation, 10 min, 2010, children, no dialogue
- The adventures of a little acorn boy in the village of stalks where he meets Mrs Bee, Mr Spider, the ants and many other insects.

Little Ruddy / Sārtulis
Puppet animation, 9 min, 2014, children, no dialogue
- The coloured pencils are a merry lot. One day, red Ruddy comes out of the pencil case too late and unsharpened. An annoying fly causes him to fall out of the window into the garden. Finding himself in a new world, Ruddy tries to make himself useful, but it seems he’s not wanted anywhere.

Recent films:

Dusty / Puteklis
Puppet animation, 13 min, 2019, children, no dialogue
- The story about a piece of dust living in a book shelf and its unusual friendship with a boy.

Zirņa bērni / Pea children
Puppet animation, 12 min, 2019, preschool-age children, no dialogue
- This film is the cinematic continuation of a classic poem by the Latvian poet Rainis. It follows the subsequent adventures of its main heroes – eight peas – and their interactions with the world around them as well as with the cycles and laws of nature. These musical and countable stories tell about the peas’ adventures after spilling out of their original home, the pod.
Vladimirs Leščovs

Vladimirs Leščovs makes films in Latvia, where his Lunohod studio is registered. However, the scale he works on is international – for example, he has dedicated a short film to the Japanese (The Letter from Hibakusha, produced by the NHK Hiroshima Station and his only film with dialogue) and has collaborated with and co-produced films with Canadians and Estonians. Electrician’s Day / Elektriķa diena (2018) is Leščovs’ tenth animated film, not counting shorter films and intermedia projects, such as projections in collaboration with the Orbita collective of poets.

Electrician’s Day focuses on the fragile border between what we call the mind and what we call madness. The action takes place in a psychiatric hospital. Medical institutions are often used in cinema to portray a social model in which to observe the relationship between power and normality and the influence habits and assigned roles have on our sense of self. In this film, too, hospital wards and hallways become a setting for a battle for identity. The main character, an electrician, receives a serious jolt of electricity while working on the hospital’s wiring. He wakes up inside the hospital, where it seems he has lain for quite some time. Day follows day, and it becomes ever harder for him to imagine life outside the hospital.

When asked “Do you, as an animation director, have an obligation to speak about problems in society?” Leščovs explains his position: “I don’t like the word ‘obligation’ in this context. There’s status as a citizen, respect, self-awareness, responsibility, honour. I don’t think it’s right to link obligation with forms of artistic expression. Let’s leave that word for our political representatives, the servants of the people.”

Leščovs animated films are figural; for the most part, they centre around a clear, albeit paradox-rich, fable told in laconic, pictorial form. His themes revolve around border situations where opposites meet: sleep and wakefulness, clarity and intoxication, life and death, meeting and parting. Electrician’s Day / Elektriķa diena (2018) is a monochrome film that calls to mind Leščovs’ other recent films; although made in various different techniques, they share the same tonality – as do the sketches of his travels that he likes to make using coffee and black tea instead of ink.

The film is drawn with brown India ink on paper and contains only a few colourful elements.

Most-significant films:

Electrician’s Day / Elektriķa diena
Classical animation, 8 min, 2018, adults, no dialogue
An accident happens during repairs at a psychiatric hospital. As a result, an electrician loses consciousness and finds himself on the other side of the wall.

Villa Antropoff
Vladimirs Leščovs and Kaspars Jancis, classical animation, 13 min, 2012, adults, no dialogue
An ironic story about dreams and losing dreams. Inspired by a real event, when both directors found themselves at a strange wedding celebration in the villa of former USSR leader Yuri Andropov near Pärnu in Estonia.

Wings and Oars / Spārni un airi
Classical animation, 6 min, 2009, adults, no dialogue
A former pilot looks back over his life: the Earth, the Sky, the Woman – everything that took place on the journey from an air strip to an abandoned boat house. Memories and flashes of various time periods create a surreal mood in which the present, past and future all exist at the same time.

Lost in Snow / Zuduši sniegā
Classical animation, 8 min, 2007, adults, no dialogue
A man goes ice-fishing on a winter day. But he is not alone. And his day on the ice involves more than catching fish.

Insomnia / Bezmiegs
Classical animation, 7 min, 2004, adults, no dialogue
She arrives in the night, silent as a cat. She will not let him fall asleep until he feeds her. She wants milk, which he will find between a dream and reality. Her name is Insomnia. The glimmering characters drawn in coloured pencil highlight the turbulent state between sleep and wakefulness.

Villa Antropoff
Vladimirs Leščovs on his upcoming film: “It’s an animated short film with the working title Winter Landscape with Skaters / Ziemas ainava ar slidotājiem. It tells about early interests, hobbies and childhood dreams that were left by the wayside only to reappear later in life to help one overcome hardships and difficulties as an adult. It is a story about how, in spite of history, socio-political systems, religions and other circumstances, people have a lot more in common with each other than they think.”
Vītols focuses on mythology, archetypes and their usage as well as the role of consumers in the art world. In 2009, his animation work also often involved large-format works that are often exhibited in Latvia and abroad. In fact, his animation work often balances on the border between the art gallery and cinema, and has been shown at a variety of festivals around the world, including the prestigious Kurzfilmtage Oberhausen and the Annecy International Animated Film Festival. The final film of this Gallery Trilogy, The End, was visually inspired by David Hockney's painting A Bigger Splash and captures that superficial vibration of the vision of an affluent life.

Vītols made all three films in the triptych in a relatively short time without a script or storyboard in the traditional sense. He believes such tools are necessary if several people are working on a film together, however, with his auteur form of animation, “there is no need for communicative interferences between the brain and the hands that execute the work.” In place of a script, he has “characters that have been giving me no peace for many years”, and the outlines of the script reveal themselves while working with mise-en-scènes. “It's hard for me to imagine how one might use words to describe a black bubble with one tentacle so that the result is just as powerful as what one might use words to describe a black bubble with one tentacle so that the result is just as powerful as what.

His latest film, The Swan Maiden / Gulbju jaunava, is based on the story of Kārlis Skalbe. Until now, the work of this classic Latvian author has been cinematised only by the animation masters Arnolds Bīrons and Rūze Stiebra. When asked whether viewers should expect something radical this time, Vītols says: “I hope it won’t be anything radical, because I had already been reaching out towards Skalbe for many years until it all finally came together. I like the challenge of cinematising a work in which all of its beautiful essence – the reason why I’m doing it – is written between the lines.”

Vītols is currently working on his first feature-length animated film with Studija Kokles, his recently founded family-based studio. His film analyses the abstract components that make up a work of art as well as the fetishism cultivated by the artist while creating it.

Anete Melece was born in Latvia in 1983. She studied visual communication at the Art Academy of Latvia (BA) and animation at Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Art (MA). She is an illustrator and animation filmmaker currently based in Zürich, Switzerland. Melece created her first animated works while still a student at the Art Academy of Latvia, and these revealed the budding director’s warm sense of humour and love of cut-out animation. One of these films, Vilina Does Not Work. Today / Vilina lietai nestītā (2007), was her first short to attract global attention; it was followed by The Kiosk / Kiosks (2013), one of the most popular Latvian animated films of the past decade. After that, Melece headed to Lucerne, where her next film, Analysis Paralysis, premiered. The film is now also being screened around the world. Melece moved to Switzerland for personal reasons and she was soon heartily accepted into the country’s small but dynamic animation community. She considers herself an artist with two nationalities: “Switzerland is unique for being a country with four languages and several dialects. So, even if you speak only broken German, no one will look at you askance; it’s easy to feel accepted in this diverse environment. Of course, everyone speaks at least a bit peculiar. Jurģis Krāsons

Jurģis Krāsons is a feature-film artist who studied to be a painter and turned his attention to animated films in 2006. He worked with the Rīja and Kompanija Hargla studios and went on to establish his own animation studio, Krasivo Limited, in 2015. The studio currently has two employees, including the director, bringing in experienced animators for individual projects. Each year, the studio has an average of five to seven film projects in addition to its other principal activity of designing costumes for art films made in Latvia and abroad.

To Swallow a Toad / Norīt krupi (2010), a short created by Krāsons at the Rīja studio that has gained recognition at several film festivals, was made in the classic 2D technique. At Krasivo Limited, however, he is working on a combination of 2D and 3D computer animation. Krāsons’ upcoming film In the Pipe / Trubā is made by integrating the 2D technique for character animation and the 3D technique for backgrounds. He used a similar approach in How I Gave Up Smoking / Kā es atmetu smēķēšanu (2016). In the Pipe features a new technical aspect: background animation made possible by 3D technologies.

Most-significant films:

- How I Gave Up Smoking / Kā es atmetu smēķēšanu (2016, 3D computer animation, 11 min, adults only, no dialogue)
  - The habit of smoking will truly be broken by the end of this film. At the beginning of the film, however, a Scandinavian woman almost dies because the main character lights a cigarette at an airport.

- Norīt krupi / To Swallow a Toad (2010, classic animation, 9 min, adults only, no dialogue)
  - Once upon a time, the rotund intellectuals lived in a small town. They were smart, good-natured, prescient and successful. And this success was based on their ability to...swallow a toad. In other words, to swallow their pride, or overcome offence. The square, practical workers also lived in this same town. They were pragmatic realists who rewarded good with good and evil with evil and did not swallow any toads. A peaceful coexistence. But one day one of the squares inadvertently found out that the rotunds swallowed toads.

- Melnā kaste / Black Box (2006, drawn animation, 16 min, adults only, dialogue)
  - In a land untouched by globalisation, all sorts of strange individuals scurry around. One of them, Hoggie, is a creature of particularly unknown origin. The Flying Hedgehog Ball arrives in the land in search of a new brand. After various misunderstandings, Hoggie’s image is published on magazine covers all around the world. And it’s all because of the Black Box.

Coming soon:

- In the Pipe / Trubā (2020, 3D and 2D animation, 9 min, adults only, no dialogue)
  - Since the dawn of animation, there has always remained an empty space for a film using darkness and sound as the main media. Many will follow, because we believe there is plenty of space down there. As a first attempt, we offer a story about an old plumber captured within a system of pipes. He helped to build this system, which has collected all of the bitterness, fear, populism and garbage flushed away by the society above. Now the plumber seeks an exit, creating mayhem and a tribute to extinct professions. Be sure you’re not living in a pipe. How long will your profession last?
Indra Sproģe's studio infinityBOX was established in 2012, by three people from the core of the studio: artist Indra Sproģe, camera operator Mārtiņš Veļa and designer/light artist Kaspars Maračkovskis. They base their creative work on various combinations of art, technology and technique and also invite other artists and animators when the pace of work becomes more intense. The studio usually works on one film at a time, the length of which varies from project to project. Initially, infinityBOX focused on the educational animated films for children Māci mani, Degunlāci! / Teach Me, Nose-Bear (2012), which teaches children the multiplication table, and Awesome Beetle’s Colours (2016) to help them learn the alphabet. The latter film won an award at the Annecy festival in the educational film category.

With its first project, Teach Me, Nose-Bear, the studio tried out all possible animation techniques, gradually developing and defining its own specific style: a combination of classic animation, plasticine animation and chiaroscuro on various textured backgrounds. In an effort to find the best combination of these three elements, the filmmakers at infinityBOX continue to fine-tune their style with each new project. To help with this process of discovery, the studio welcomes collaborations involving various animation techniques and has also begun making allegorical short films for adults.

Most-significant films:

Introduction to an Epilogue
Plasticine, tracing paper, 9 min, 2018, adults, no dialogue
An allegorical animated film about the fear of death, which, it turns out, is in fact a narcissistic emotion. The film reflects man’s transformation at truly difficult life moments and his ability to accept the inevitable and understand that life is always just one life long.

Awesome Beetle’s Colours
Plasticine, acrylic, pastels, 3 min, 2016, children’s film, dialogues
A colourful, surreal animated film that presents the English alphabet three times. The film received the Cristal Award at Annecy and has been screened at more than one hundred festivals on five continents.

Kur manas atslēgas? / Where is the Key?
Classic and plasticine animation, 7 min, 2021, adults
A 2D and 3D allegorical animated film (music by Mārtiņš Brauns). The hero of the film tries out the experiences of other characters, but she only finds the key when she looks into herself, starts doing the thing she loves most - art. Lara begins to love herself, connecting with the world she was looking for. When she finds the key, the world becomes colorful and takes on proper dimensions. This is also reflected in the choice of animation technique. The technique changes, too, to stop-action plasticine animation. This project is still in production.
Nils Skapāns

ils Skapāns is an independent puppet animation director as well as the scriptwriter, animator and often also the artist for his own films. He has made almost 40 short films to date, and in 2019 is working on two new challenges.

A self-educated director, Skapāns originally worked as DOP for classical drawn animation at the Dauka studio. In 1993 he began working at the Animācijas Brigāde puppet animation studio, where he directed and co-authored the script for the Munk and Lemmy / Munks un Lemjīšis series. Less than two years after joining the studio, his short film Let’s Fly?! / Munks un Lemjīšis (1994), from the same series, received Latvia’s first puppet animation prize and became one of the most popular films ever made in Latvia. “The next turning point in Skapāns’ career was when I began using it,” says Skapāns. “This is an opportunity to try out using silicon puppets, which I also plan on using in the second project I have going on at the moment, The Nap / Diendusa. And this project is special because of the fact that I’m collaborating with the young and promising animation enthusiast Anna Zača, who is also the head of the Latvian Animation Association."

As work continues on The Nap, the director and his producer, Uldis Ķekulis, are consulting with children between the ages of seven and ten in order to create a script that’s as exciting as possible for this children’s sci-fi adventure film. A film about a little girl, her beloved toy rabbit and her always-busy father, who doesn’t even notice that his daughter and the rabbit have figured out a way to accompany him to London. Who would have thought that an ordinary suitcase is such a great means of transport?"

Burvīga diena / Wonderful Day Plasticine animation, 15 min, 2015, children, no dialogue

A film about a little girl, her beloved boy-rabbit and her always-busy father, who doesn’t even notice that his daughter and the rabbit have figured out a way to accompany him to London. Who would have thought that an ordinary suitcase is such a great means of transport?

Recent films:

Visi mani draugi ir miruši / All My Friends are Dead Nils Skapāns and Anna Zača, stop motion/puppet animation, 5 min, 2019, young adults / adults, no dialogue

VFS Films, stop motion/puppet animation, 26 min, 2021, children, dialogue

When Anna Zača was young, she experienced the upswing of social networks. Her once active cultural life has slowed down, but the desire for real conversations remains. She will fight to the end... for a chance to talk with someone.

Work in progress:

Diendusa / The Nap VFS Films, stop motion/puppet animation, 26 min, 2021, children, dialogue

A film about a little girl, her beloved toy rabbit and her always-busy father, who doesn’t even notice that his daughter and the rabbit have figured out a way to accompany him to London. Who would have thought that an ordinary suitcase is such a great means of transport?

Most-significant films:

Klucānija / Brickannia Plasticine animation, 6 min, 2000, adults, no dialogue

Strange, bird-like, meteorite-eating creatures live on a planet not far from Earth. Their problems are different from ours, and their joy... well, it’s difficult to tell exactly what those are. But as we become more familiar with the bird world, we see that there are nevertheless plenty of similarities with our own world.

Redzi, Trusi!... Tētis brauc uz Londonu / Listen, Rabbit... Daddy Goes to London Plasticine animation, 8 min, 2004, children’s film, no dialogue

A film about a little girl, her beloved boy-rabbit and her always-busy father, who doesn’t even notice that his daughter and the rabbit have figured out a way to accompany him to London. Who would have thought that an ordinary suitcase is such a great means of transport?

Diendusa / The Nap

to London / Redzi, Trusi!... Tētis brauc uz Londonu (2004) and Wonderful Day / Burvīga diena (2010), he also returned to the children’s competition at the Berlin International Film Festival.

Around the same time, Skapāns began a collaboration with the Studio Locomotive, which produced four of his animated short films for children. He is currently producing films with VFS Studio. These projects include the film All My Friends Are Dead / Visi mani draugi ir miruši, which represents Skapāns’ first foray into silicon puppet animation: “This is an opportunity to try out using silicon puppets, which I also plan on using in the second project I have going on at the moment, The Nap / Diendusa. The Art Academy of Latvia is the first institution of higher education in Latvia to offer a course in animation technique and direction. In 2013 it established the “Motion. Image. Sound” bachelor’s (four years) and master’s (two years) programmes within the Faculty of Audio-Visual Media Art. Instructors include Edmunds Jansons, Inga Prauliņa, Dzintars Krūmiņš and other well-known names in Latvian animation. The artist Ojārs Pētersons is the director of the programme.

At the secondary level, young animators (nowadays called multimedia design specialists) are being taught in the four-year Visual Communications Art programme at the Janis Rozentāls Riga Art School, which begins in the tenth grade. There, students are taught animation by Driztars Krūmiņš, one of the most experienced 2D animation specialists in Latvia. Gints Zīhalsids is a recent graduate of the programme. Elementary-aged students can also participate in after-school activities in which they learn the foundations of visual art as well as animation.

In Riga, the Latvian capital, students can enrol in the “Multimedia Design Specialist – Animation” programme at the Riga Art and Media Technical School. Upon graduation, they receive a vocational secondary-education diploma that allows them to enter tertiary education or employment in their profession. The programme is four years long.

The Daugavpils Secondary School of Design and Art “Saules skola” offers a Multimedia Design programme directed by artist and animator Vladimirs Leščovs. The four-year programme prepares students for employment not only in animation but also video, graphic arts, sound and other media.

Likewise, animation can be studied at the Liepāja Music, Art and Design Secondary School. Its Multimedia Design programme teaches the foundations of 2D and 3D animation. If a student enrols in 10th grade, the programme is four years long; if a student enrols after 12th grade, the programme is two years long.

Students can also learn animation as a separate course in addition to audio-visual art and multimedia studies at various educational institutions and special interest education programmes outside of regular school programmes. For example, animator Ilze Ruska teaches animation to children and youth ages eight to 25 at the “Annas 2” Centre of Creative Learning. Master of plasticine animation Nils Skapāns teaches master classes and workshops for people of all ages, for example, at his stop-motion technique courses at the Riga Art and Media Technical School.

Recent films by students:

- Dramatic End / Dramatiskas beigas
  Kerija Arne, 2D animation, 3 min, 2019, Latvia, adults, no dialogue
  - The participants in a ritual are performing with rhythmic energy. Suddenly, a vibrating sound comes from outside. The spectators hurry back to their places, and the dramatic ending can begin.

- Moon of the Dead or: How I Stopped Panicking and Avoiding Reality / Miroņu mēness jeb: Kā es pārstāju baidīties un izvairīties no realitātes
  Monta Andžejevska, 3D animation, 3 min, 2020, young adults
  - A massive zombie apocalypse surprises VR players. The fight appears incredibly difficult, especially if one of the players is new to the game.

- Night Shift / Nakts maiņa
  Linda Stūre, 2D classical animation, 3 min, 2019, Latvia, adults, no dialogue
  - A night-shift guard’s nightly ritual of a game of Tetris is interrupted by unexpected technical issues. One of the surveillance cameras breaks down, and the game starts setting its own rules.
